MATTHEWS CHARLES	Baptised 01.10.1893 RN	31.05.1916 23 Battle of Jutland	Stoker 1 st Class K/19385 RN HMS 'Black Prince'	Portsmouth Naval Memorial 19	s/o Samuel Brister Matthews & Ellen Matthews, Manor Farm, Fishbourne. During the Battle of Jutland the cruiser Black Prince , for some reason which will never be known, was left far astern of and out of touch with the British fleet; but when a line of battleships was dimly seen ahead, it was no doubt thought that they were the British squadrons. Course was altered to close them. At a bare half-mile range, the German recognition signal flashed out. The horrified Captain Bonham, swung his ship away in a desperate effort to escape, but it was too late. In the battleship Thuringen the same deadly efficient night action procedure that had already been displayed went into play. Brilliantly lit by half-a-dozen searchlights, the Black Prince was raked from stern to stem by a tornado of shells and lay a helpless wreck

					before she could even fire a shot in reply. As she drifted down the German line, ship after ship opened up on her, Thuringen , Ostfriesland , Nassau and, finally, as the fleet flagship Friedrich der Grosse , added her quota, the Black Prince met the same end as the Defence , blowing up with a tremendous explosion, sinking with all hands. MAYNE HENRY DENCH 'JACKER'	1876 RN	20.07.1915 39 (Other sources put the date as 25 th July)	Stoker 1 st Class 293347 RN Submarine HMS/E9 Later HM S/M E11 Awarded Distinguished Service Medal (DSM)	Portsmouth Naval Memorial 8 (Photograph of crew of Submarine E11. Also photograph of young Henry Mayne during training at HMS Duke of Wellington in about 1895) This was the hulk of a large old wooden wall ship moored alongside at Fountain Lake Jetty Portsmouth dockyard. This was the forerunner of the naval barracks in Portsmouth. The stoker trainees were billeted there while undergoing their training in another hulk, the iron ship HMS Nelson. I am indebted to George Malcolmson at The Submarine Museum at Gosport for the source of much of the information on Stoker Mayne and also the two photographs.	s/o Henry & Elizabeth Mayne, husband of Elizabeth Jane Mayne (née Hammond) of Ingleside Cottage, Old Fishbourne. Mayne was onboard Submarine E11 which was operating in the Dardenelles and the Bosphorus. She made three tours of the area in all and during the first tour in May/June, before Mayne died, 11 ships were sunk. The whole crew were awarded the DSM. At about 6.30 am on 20 th July, 1915, Mayne was washed off the submarine's casing in choppy seas about 130 miles from Malta. Ist Lieutenant Guy D'Oyly-Hughes jumped in after him but failed to reach him before he sank. For the attempt D'Oyly-Hughes was voted the Silver Medal of the Royal Humane Society. This incident is recorded in the book, 'Carrier Glorious' by John Winton 1996. In WW2 D'Oyly Hughes was Captain of HMS Glorious when she was sunk on her return to Scapa Flow from Norway in 1940. Considerable controversy surrounds the sinking. See also entry for Leonard COOK WW2.

Enlisted Fishbourne. *Redman's entry in the Bosham Baptism Register, the two War Memorials and Civic records up to age of 19 show him as Allen. Military records show him as Allan. However, it has been decided to use the original spelling of his name for this record and it was also kept when the Quay Meadow memorial was re-carved in 2013. The invasion at Gallipoli began at Suvla on Cape Helles during the period 6 th -15 th August. As Redman's death is recorded as the 10 th August it is reasonable to assume that it was in this action that he was killed. He was never found - all the officers of his battalion were killed or wounded. Other ranks: 55 killed, 276 wounded, 976 missing. AATD Basingstoke.
